

Ultimate Texas Hold'Em

Ultimate Texas Hold'Em is another exciting variation of poker. You start off by placing one ANTE and one BLIND wager of equal amounts. You also have the option to place a TRIPS bonus wager.

Once all wagers are made, you will receive two hole cards. After viewing your cards, you will have the option to CHECK or make a PLAY wager. Following this round of options, the dealer will turn over the FLOP (3 community cards). Each player who previously checked will have another opportunity to CHECK or make a PLAY wager. Following this round of options, the dealer will turn over the two final community cards. Once all five community cards are exposed, the dealer will ask each player who previously checked, if they wish to FOLD or make a PLAY wager.

The dealer will now reveal the house's two hole cards and announce the house hand. If your hand is better than the house hand, your PLAY and ANTE wagers are paid at odds of 1:1. If you beat the house hand with at least a straight, your BLIND wager is paid according to the posted payable. If the house hand is better than your hand, you lose your PLAY, ANTE, and BLIND wagers. Tie hands result in a push.

The house hand must have a qualifying hand of at least a pair. If the house hand does not qualify, your ANTE wager pushes even if your hand loses to the house hand. Regardless of whether the house hand qualifies, your BLIND and PLAY wagers are still in action.

If you made a TRIPS wager, the dealer will now determine whether your five-card hand qualifies for the Trips bonus. If it does, you will be paid according to the posted payable.
